Simultaneous equation models are a type of statistical model in the form of a set of linear simultaneous equations. They are often used in econometrics. One can estimate these models equation by equation; however, estimation methods that exploit the system of equations, such as generalized method of moments (GMM) and instrumental variables estimation (IV) tend to be more efficient.

In statistics, ordinary least squares (OLS) is a type of linear least squares method for estimating the unknown parameters in a linear regression model. OLS chooses the parameters of a linear function of a set of explanatory variables by the principle of least squares: minimizing the sum of the squares of the differences between the observed dependent variable (values of the variable being ...

Multicollinearity is a common problem when estimating linear or generalized linear models, including logistic regression and Cox regression. It occurs when there are high correlations among predictor variables.
